Almost 1,300 in before Nov. 5 vote

Courier staff report

When Jefferson County's polling places open at 6 a.m. Tuesday morning, 1,291 voters will have already made their decisions in one way or another in the municipal races in Madison and Hanover.

That total is more than double the number of early voters the same races saw during the primary election last May.

The mayoral race in Madison and clerk-treasurer and city council races in both Madison and Hanover are the only issues on the ballot but if mail-in voting and early voting are an indication, the general election should see a much stronger turnout than the May primary.

When the Jefferson County Voter Registration Office closed to the public at noon Monday — bringing to an end to early voting — 1,012 of the 8,500 eligible voters (15%) had exercised that option and 279 of the 298 requested mail-in ballots had been returned to the courthouse.

Tally those and 1,291 voters are already done before voting even begins on election day. By comparison, the May 7 primary saw just 1,845 total votes cast in Madison and Hanover for a 24.95 percent voter turnout. Of that total, 472 were early walk-in voters and 130 voted by mail-in absentee ballot.

The polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday with vote tabulations beginning soon after at the courthouse.

Water main leak makes big splash in downtown area

Commuters entering and leaving downtown Madison Monday morning put on a splashing show as water bubbling up from a water main leak along S.R. 56 flowed across the roadway.

As the traffic splashed through, contractors had begun to stage their equipment to fix the problem, which first became visible late last week.

Monday's job is just another in a long line of water leaks communities have been experiencing as last summer's drought has been followed by rain and colder weather, said John Gilpin, an equipment operator for Sedam Contracting Inc. of Hanover.

"People just don't realize how much the earth moves depending on the weather and soil conditions," said Gilpin, noting that drought and heavy rain as well as heat and cold all

Man gets home detention in case where 2 Clark judges shot

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — A man who pleaded guilty in a May altercation in which two judges were shot in downtown Indianapolis has been sentenced to home detention. Alfredo Vazquez pleaded guilty Friday to one misdemeanor battery count. A Marion County judge then sentenced the 24-year-old to 180 days of home detention and a year of probation for violating probation on a previous drunken driving conviction. He was charged for his role in a May 1 fight outside an Indianapolis fast-food restaurant during which Clark County judges Andrew Adams and Brad Jacobs were shot and wounded. The Indianapolis Star reported Vazquez told the court Friday that he regrets what happened that night. Vazquez's uncle, 41-year-old Brandon Kaiser, is accused of shooting the judges. His trial on 14 charges is scheduled to start Nov. 18.

State appeals release of IU student's killer

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana is appealing a federal judge's ruling that ordered the release of a man convicted in the 2000 killing of an Indiana University student. Attorney General Curtis Hill's office filed a notice of intent Wednesday to appeal the judge's September ruling vacating John Myers II's murder conviction. The judge found that Myers' trial attorney was so ineffective his Sixth Amendment rights were violated. The now 43-year-old Myers was convicted in 2006 in the fatal shooting of 19-year-old Jill Behrman and sentenced to 65 years. Behrman vanished in May 2000 after leaving her Bloomington home for a bike ride. Hunters found her remains in 2003. Morgan County Prosecutor Steve Sonnega tells The Herald-Times he expects it will be months before the Chicago-based 7th U.S. Court of Appeals rules on the matter.

Downtown tulip planting a '20 census reminder

INDIANAPOLIS — Yellow tulip bulbs are expected to be planted in downtown Indianapolis to beautify the area and remind Marion County residents to complete the 2020 census. Downtown Indy Inc. said volunteers will plant bulbs Monday in Legacy Garden on Washington Street. The planting is in conjunction with Count Me Indy, Marion County's Complete Count Campaign for the 2020 Census. Downtown Indy was gifted the tulip bulbs. The organization said in a news release that for every person not counted in the 2020 census, Marion County misses out on $20,000 to $30,000 in federal funding that would otherwise come into the community over the next 10 years. Count Me Indy is supported by the Indianapolis Department of Metropolitan Development.

Cyber battalion to be based at Muscatatuck

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana will be home to the Midwest's first National Guard cyber battalion, according to officials. The 127th Cyber Battalion will be comprised of nearly 100 soldiers who will be trained on cyber security and cyber warfare at the Muscatatuck Urban Training Center in Jennings County. The center features realistic simulations with live environments for cyber and electronic warfare testing and training. Officials said they chose Indiana for its existing cyber capabilities, partnerships with industry and academia, and the ability to recruit and retain soldiers. Nineteen states and territories were considered. The 127th Cyber Battalion will serve under the Army National Guard's 91st Cyber Brigade, which was established in Virginia in 2016. Two cyber battalions are in Virginia, while South Carolina and Massachusetts each has one.

State panel wants cigarette age at 21

INDIANAPOLIS — A legislative panel is recommending that Indiana's legal age for buying cigarettes be raised from 18 to 21. The Legislature's public health study committee approved the recommendation this past week after hearing testimony recently on the change that has failed to advance among lawmakers for several years. The Journal Gazette reported the proposed age change would cover both traditional and electronic cigarettes. Committee chairman Sen. Ed Charbonneau of Valparaiso said he doesn't expect action until at least the 2021 legislative session when a new state budget is considered because Indiana cigarette tax revenue could decline with the change. Sen. Vaneta Becker of Evansville countered that the state might see a loss in tax revenue initially but will save on long-term health expenses.

Court upholds 120-year molestation sentence

JEFFERSONVILLE — A man who molested children while working at a YMCA and at an elementary school has lost his initial bid for a sentence reduction. Twenty-year-old Michael Begin of Jeffersonville received a 120-year sentence in April after pleading guilty to molesting 20 children. The News and Tribune reported Begin's attorneys sought to have his sentence cut to 60 years and served in a combination of prison time, community corrections and probation. They argued that his 120-year sentence was essentially a life sentence for a man with no prior criminal record facing non-homicide charges. But the Indiana Court of Appeals rejected that request Wednesday, citing the nature of Begin's crimes. Begin's attorney Tom Lowe said the ruling is disappointing and they will likely "seek transfer to the Indiana Supreme Court."

STATE BRIEFS

Shuttered fire tower re-opens after decades

SPENCER — A fire tower that commands spectacular views of a forest has re-opened decades after it was shuttered. The 86-foot-tall tower in McCormick's Creek State Park was closed 30 years ago after being judged unsafe. But it re-opened to climbers Wednesday following a renovation paid for by park supporters who raised more than $100,000. Visitors can now hike to the tower and climb 105 steps to an enclosed cab to take in the impressive forest views. The Herald-Times reported the tower was built in 1935 in the park near the town of Spencer by members of the Depression-era Civilian Conservation Corps. The tower is about 15 miles northwest of Bloomington. It's one of 12 fire towers still standing in Indiana's state parks and forests.

Richmond Mall bounces back from June tornado

RICHMOND — A shopping mall damaged by a June tornado has now re-opened all but one of its storm-tossed stores. Nine stores had remained closed when the Richmond Mall re-opened in early July about two weeks after a tornado swept the 391,000-square-foot mall with winds of up to 85 mph. But the Palladium-Item reported that one by one those stores have re-opened following cleanup work. The mall's JCPenney store re-opened to customers Wednesday, leaving only the mall's OfficeMax store still closed for renovations. The June 15 tornado punched a hole in the roof above that OfficeMax, blew out windows and scattered debris across the mall's parking lot. The OfficeMax store is expected to re-open in December.

Collision between van, horse & buggy kills 2

HOLLANDSBURG — Authorities say two people were killed when a van crashed into a horse-drawn buggy. The Parke County Sheriff's Department said an Amish family of four was traveling along U.S. 36 in a horse-drawn buggy Saturday morning when it was struck from the rear by the van. The Tribune-Star reported the impact near the community of Hollandsburg forced the buggy off the road, killing two of the four family members. The two survivors were flown to Indianapolis hospitals, but their conditions weren't immediately known. The van's driver, 66-year-old Steven Miller Ealy of Danville, Indiana, was not injured, and a veterinarian cared for the horse at the scene. Police say alcohol and drugs are not believed to be factors in the crash.

Woman gets 6 years in hot grease attack

MUNCIE — A Muncie woman who pleaded guilty to dousing a house guest with a pan of hot grease has been sentenced to six years in prison. Mykael Dauna Holloway, 24, was sentenced Thursday in the July 2017 attack that left another woman with severe burns. Police found the victim on the grass outside Holloway's home screaming in pain. The victim, whose most severe burns were on her back, told investigators she had known Holloway since they were in elementary school and she had been staying at Holloway's home during a visit. She told police that Holloway threw the grease on her after accusing her of stealing deodorant. The Star Press reported Holloway had pleaded guilty to aggravated battery and possession of cocaine.

Full court won't rehear state abortion law case

CHICAGO (AP) — Eleven active judges on the Chicago-based 7th U.S. Court of Appeals have voted not to rehear a case over a block on a 2017 Indiana law that would make it tougher for minors to get abortions without their parents' knowledge. The Chicago Daily Law Bulletin reported Friday that the narrow 6-to-5 vote this week means a preliminary injunction imposed by an Indiana court in 2018 remains in place. A three-judge 7th Circuit panel recently upheld that injunction. Indiana generally bars abortions for minors living at home without parental consent. But minors can seek exceptions. The 2017 law would require parents be given notice of a planned abortion even if their daughter doesn't need their consent.

Warsaw plant closings will cost 100 jobs

WARSAW — A manufacturer is shutting down its northern Indiana facilities, which will cost about 100 people their jobs. Winona PVD Coatings has notified state officials it expecs to permanently close both of its Warsaw sites at the end of December. The company applies coatings and chrome plating to automotive wheel rims. Company officials haven't explained the closure and the Warsaw mayor's office was surprised by the decision.

Repairs to close lanes on Kennedy Bridge

LOUISVILLE — Transportation officials said lane closures are planned on an Ohio River Bridge that connects Louisville to southern Indiana so that expansion joint repairs can be made. The Kentucky Transportation Department says in a statement that lane closures on the Interstate 65 Kennedy Bridge will begin this week. The statement said the right three lanes of Interstate 65 South will close at midnight on Nov. 8 and reopen at 5 a.m. on Nov. 27. Officials say motorists should watch for work zone signs and slower traffic. The left three lanes of I-65 will be closed in December as part of the same project. The work is being done to provide a smoother ride for vehicles traveling over the span.

UK police probe 6 rape reports this semester

LEXINGTON— Police at the University of Kentucky are investigating the sixth report of rape at its Lexington campus this semester. News outlets say the latest report was made Tuesday, two days after the alleged date rape in a campus dormitory. The school's crime bulletins and daily crime log say most of the reported attacks happened in residence halls by male suspects known to the victims. The crime log shows three of the cases remain open, two were closed after no law enforcement response was requested or action taken, and another was determined to be unfounded. The Courier Journal reported the school's latest full-year data says 28 reports of "forcible" rape and fondling were reported in 2018, an increase from the two previous years.

Carbon monoxide cited in death, kids injuries

HENDERSON — Firefighters say they detected high levels of carbon monoxide in a home where a woman was found dead and two children discovered in serious condition. News outlets report Henderson Fire Department Chief Scott Foreman said crews were called to a home Saturday night for a medical emergency. Investigators pronounced a woman dead at the scene. A fire department statement obtained by outlets says the two children found inside the apartment were taken to a hospital with symptoms consistent with carbon monoxide poisoning. Firefighters didn't say what the source of the gas was.

Suspect fatally shot in altercation with police

DEXTER — Police say a male suspect has been fatally shot during a weekend altercation with police. Kentucky State Police Trooper Adam Jones said in a news release 42-year-old John D. Hale of Almo was shot Saturday in the Calloway County community of Dexter. The statement said the shooting occurred following an altercation with police but did not provide details. It said a Calloway County sheriff's deputy and a Murray police officer had responded to a report of a suspicious person. Neither officer was injured and their names were not immediately released. An autopsy on Hale's body was planned for Sunday.

Roger Penske buys Indianapolis Motor Speedway, IndyCar

By JENNA FRYER
AP Auto Racing Writer

Indianapolis Motor Speedway and the IndyCar Series were sold to Penske Entertainment Corp. in a stunning move Monday that relinquishes control of the iconic speedway from the Hulman family after 74 years.

Tony Hulman bought the dilapidated speedway in 1945 and brought racing back to the corner of 16th Street and Georgetown Avenue after a four-year absence following World War II. Roger Penske will become just the fourth owner of the 110-year-old speedway.

The speedway spun off multiple subsidiaries, including the IndyCar Series and Indianapolis Motor Speedway Productions, which are also part of the deal to Penske Entertainment. That group is a subsidiary of Penske Corp., which is owned by billionaire Roger Penske.

"Great day for our family and our team," Penske said in a text message to The Associated Press.

The IndyCar Series is on an upward trend with improved television ratings and increased interest. Penske is the winningest team owner in Indianapolis 500 history with 18 victories, including Simon Pagenaud's win in May. He capped the IndyCar Season with a championship from driver Josef Newgarden, the 15th for the Team Penske organization.

The speedway is to discuss the deal in a news conference Monday. The sale is expected to close in early January, according to a document of message points sent to IndyCar teams on Monday, a copy of which was obtained by the AP.

"We have found the ideal steward of the company and its iconic assets," the document states. "Penske Corporation — with its 64,000-plus employees and more than $32 billion in consolidated revenue — will bring tremendous energy, leadership and resources to IMS, IndyCar and IMSP.

"For a number of years, the Hulman & Company management and board have engaged outside advisers and experts to consider the full range of strategic options available. Ultimately, it was decided to focus on the possible sale of the company and finding a buyer that would be the best steward of the company and its iconic assets."

The document states Penske Corp. approached the Hulman board in the fall about the purchase.

Support from rival team owners was immediate. Chip Ganassi said Penske called him early Monday morning before the sale was announced to inform him, adding "the place is going to be run like a business now."

Michael Andretti called it "positive news" for the series and the speedway.

"Roger has always strived to do great things for both IMS and Indy car racing, and I'm sure he will continue to do so in this new ownership position," Andretti said. "Both the Indy 500 and the NTT IndyCar Series have been on a rise and I look forward to the continued climb."

And Bobby Rahal called him the "perfect custodian" for the speedway.

"Roger Penske's commitment to the sport we love is over six decades long and I am confident that his stewardship of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway and the IndyCar Series will ensure a great future for the sport," Rahal said. "His many successful business ventures underline the fact that he is the perfect custodian of one of the most historic venues in the world and is the perfect architect to build the foundation for the next 100-plus years of the sport."

Penske's love of the speedway dates to 1951 when his father, Jay, scored a pair of tickets to the Indianapolis 500 from the metal fabrication company in Cleveland where he worked. He brought his 14-year-old car-loving son to the speedway to see the event live after listening to it only on radio for many years.

Penske was instantly hooked and has missed only six Indianapolis 500s since, five of which came when the IndyCar Series was formed by Tony George and split from CART. Penske teams remained in CART, and CART teams were not welcome at the 500.

CART was once the most popular form of motorsports in the U.S., but NASCAR swallowed open-wheel racing during the tumultuous times after Tony George created the Indy Racing League. The split fractured open-wheel racing in North America and it has never recovered even after CART conceded and merged into what is now known as IndyCar.

Penske has mixed track ownership and team ownership before, and the Detroit resident first purchased Michigan International Speedway in 1973. He later owned California Speedway, as well, and currently runs the Detroit Grand Prix doubleheader IndyCar weekend.

The purchase was applauded by Team Penske driver Will Power, the 2018 Indy 500 winner and former IndyCar champion, who understands all Penske drivers strive to please the boss at Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

"Roger's love of Indy and racing is no secret, so I can't think of anyone better to have purchased it," said Power. "I think this helps secure the future of the sport and continues the positive direction that the series is headed in."

George, the grandson of Tony Hulman, has long run the speedway and its properties along with his sisters and a board of directors. But matriarch Mari Hulman George, daughter of Tony Hulman, died last November and her children and the board have made a series of moves divesting their businesses. The Hulman & Company family sold its other primary business, Clabber Girl, to B&G Foods for $80 million in May. Clabber Girl produced name brand baking powder, baking soda and corn starch for 150 years.

The family has now turned its racing properties over to Penske in an announcement made one day after the one-year anniversary of Hulman George's death. Penske, who turned 82 in February, received the Presidential Medal of Freedom from President Donald Trump last month.

"I cannot think of a better owner than Roger Penske and his corporation to ensure the future and growth of IndyCar," Zak Brown, CEO of McLaren, told the AP. McLaren is entering IndyCar next season and Brown was a longtime Indianapolis businessman who ran a racing marketing business.

"His business acumen and dedication to IndyCar racing and passion for the Indianapolis Motor Speedway is second to none," he said.

Python strangled woman in sheriff's snake-filled house

By DAVE BANGERT
(Lafayette) Journal and Courier

An 8-foot reticulated python (example above) found wrapped around the neck of Laura Hurst strangled her in an Oxford house that was designed specifically to house 140 snakes, an autopsy revealed Friday. (Photo from Wikimedia Commons)

OXFORD – An 8-foot reticulated python found wrapped around the neck of Laura Hurst, a 36-year-old mother of two and a snake enthusiast from Battle Ground, strangled her in an Oxford house that was designed specifically to house 140 snakes, an autopsy revealed Friday.

The preliminary cause of death was asphyxia due to strangulation by a snake, according to an autopsy done by Benton County Coroner Matt Rosenbarger and released Friday by Indiana State Police.

A final autopsy won't be finished for another four to six weeks, as officials wait for toxicology reports, a standard procedure in autopsies.

Benton County Sheriff Don Munson, who owns the snake house in the 600 block of North Dan Patch Drive, about 25 miles northwest of Lafayette, found Hurst on the floor with the python loosely wrapped around her neck. Munson and medics were unable to revive Hurst, according to an Indiana State Police account. ISP officials say Hurst kept snakes in the house, among Munson's collection.

Munson was not immediately available for comment Friday. Members of Hurst's family were not immediately available. Her obituary, published Friday evening at jconline.com, pays tribute to her under her maiden name, Laura Perdue.

Sgt. Kim Riley, an Indiana State Police spokesman, said that the snake found Wednesday night apparently had been taken from its enclosure. The other snakes in the house were still in their cages when police arrived after getting a call just before 9 p.m. Wednesday.

Munson told the Journal & Courier that on Wednesday night he "came over there and found her, did everything we could." Munson said Hurst's death was a "tragic accident with loss of human life." He said he was "being fully cooperative with everybody."

"I've given all information to the state police," Munson told the Journal & Courier Thursday.

When asked Thursday, Munson did not elaborate on the purpose of the house that Benton County property records show he owns next to his residence on North Dan Patch Drive.

In a 2001 Journal & Courier story, Munson was a guest at Oxford Elementary, where the principal had invited him to show a 13-foot, 45-pound python. At the time, Munson was a Benton County deputy who bred snakes for sale. He told students that day that he had 52 snakes in his garage.

The Indiana Department of Natural Resources does not regulate the possession of any species of python or boa constrictor, regardless of its length, Marty Benson, a DNR spokesman, said.

The DNR regulates and requires permits for venomous snakes and endangered species of snakes and has regulations governing the possession and sale of native species of snakes, even if they are not venomous or endangered, Benson said. Because pythons aren't native to Indiana, the DNR doesn't regulate them, he said.

"There could be local ordinances regulating the possession or sale of pythons, but that would be through the county commissioners or, if it were in city/town limits, a city/town ordinance," Benson said.

Benson said Munson does not hold a permit from the DNR for any species of snake or other wild or exotic animal that the state regulates.

Sgt. Kim Riley, an Indiana State Police spokesman, said police were told there were no venomous snakes in the house Munson owned. He said there were no laws under ISP jurisdiction dealing with a house with so many snakes.

"It's out of our bailiwick," Riley said. "So, we're leaving that to the DNR."

Oxford, a town of 1,130 people best known as home to turn-of-the-century harness racing champ Dan Patch, has an ordinance that limits households to two dogs or two cats or one of each, according to Christie Hale, Oxford's clerk-treasurer. The town's ordinance specifically prohibits pit bulls, she said. The ordinance also bars possession of vicious animals, defined as "any dog or any other animal," domesticated or wild, that "has previously displayed belligerent behavior toward any person in a manner such as to threaten bodily injury to a person, whether that animal or bird was bred, used or trained for fighting or attack."

Hale said she wasn't clear whether the town's ordinances addressed keeping more than 100 snakes in a residential home in Oxford. She said the question would be better addressed by county building and health officials.

"I'm sure there will be a lot more discussion," Hale said.

A call to the Benton County building department and health department was not immediately returned on questions about county codes.

The reticulated python, the longest living species of snake in the world, are constrictors, meaning they coil around their prey and squeeze them until they're dead in just a couple minutes, according to Cornell University professor Harry W. Greene. Larger reticulated pythons – they can grow well beyond 20 feet in length – have been known to be able to swallow a human, he told USA Today.

Statement of Alcorn Sage Schwartz & Magrath

A local online gossip column recently posted several false statements concerning our law firm:
Their false statements include:

1. That Merritt Alcorn demanded the firing of a lawyer in our firm
2. That a meeting of the firm occurred at which this was discussed
3. That the firm has phone banks for a political candidate in our office

These are statements that are totally false and maliciously published. The firm has verified with the alleged participants that these statements are totally false. Further publication of these false statements is knowingly dessiminating false information.
Our firm supports the positive dialogue of local citizens. Many important matters need to be addressed by our community. These matters deserve open, honest,issue-oriented discussion. Defamation and character assassination are harmful to the process. We condemn those tactics.
In support of the above statement we signed our endorsement by our signatures below this 31 day of October, 2019.

Trooper, two others injured

An Indiana State Trooper and the drivers of two other vehicles sustained minor injuries Sunday when the trooper's vehicle was struck while executing a traffic stop on US 421 south of Versailles, Indiana. (ISP Versailles photo)

Courier staff report

An Indiana State Police Trooper and the drivers of two other vehicles sustained minor injuries Sunday when the trooper's vehicle was struck while executing a traffic stop on U.S. 421 south of Versailles, Indiana.

The crash occured at about 9:45 a.m. Nov. 3, as Senior Trooper Kyle Black was conducting a traffic stop on a 2002 Dodge Caravan being driven northbound by Barbara Ann Matis, 48, of Madison, Indiana, on U.S. 421 near County Road 750 South in southern Ripley County.

Black's unmarked vehicle was positioned behind Matis' vehicle on the shoulder of U.S. 421 with his emergency lights activated when a northbound 2013 Chevrolet Traverse driven by Mary Ann Holman, 77, of Holton, Indiana, collided with the rear of Black's vehicle, which was then pushed into Matis' vehicle.

Debris from Holman's vehicle struck Black, who was standing outside of his vehicle. He sustained an injury to his leg and was taken to Margaret Mary Hospital in Batesville, Indiana, where he was treated and released. Holman was taken to King's Daughters' Hospital in Madison to be treated for non-life threatening injuries. Matis complained of pain but declined to be taken for further medical treatment.

The investigation is ongoing.

State parks temporarily close for deer hunting

Courier staff report

Clifty Falls State Park will be among state park properties that will close temporarily for controlled deer management hunts in the coming weeks.

Each hunt is for two days. The first hunt is Monday, Nov. 18, and Tuesday, Nov. 19.

The second is on Monday, Dec. 2, and Tuesday, Dec. 3.

The participating state park properties will close to the general public on the evening before each of the two hunts.

Participating state park properties are Chain O'Lakes, Charlestown, Clifty Falls, Fort Harrison, Harmonie, Indiana Dunes, McCormick's Creek, Ouabache, Pokagon, Prophetstown, Shakamak, Spring Mill, Summit Lake, Tippecanoe River, and Whitewater Memorial state parks, as well as Cave River Valley Natural Area and Trine State Recreation Area.

These state park properties will re-open the morning after each two-day hunt. All Indiana state park properties not mentioned will be operating under normal hours.

Indiana DNR biologists evaluate which state park properties require a deer management hunt each year based on habitat recovery and previous harvest rates at each park. The state parks are home to numerous natural communities that serve as significant habitat. The deer management hunts help control browsing by deer to a level that helps ensure healthy habitat for native plants and animals.

Only individuals selected from the draw may participate at any site.

A full report on the 2018 deer management hunts is at stateparks.IN.gov/files/sp-DeerRMRR.pdf

The 2019 report will be available in March 2020.

Information regarding 2020 state park deer management hunts, including online applications, will be available next summer at on.IN.gov/reservedhunt

The application deadline is usually in mid-August of the year in which the hunts are to take place.

Mad Hop packs 'em in for a Saturday experiment

The Willow Tree Carolers played at the Electric Lady around 1:30 p.m. Nov. 2 in place of the Boggy Branch Band. Madison resident Mark Jones, enjoying the Jordan Wilson Coalition's set at Off Broadway Taproom, was one of several wearing appropriate Mad Hatter hats during the festival. What's the encore?

That's what venue owners are wondering after the first Mad Hop Music Festival far surpassed expectations for attendance and wristband sales.

Everything seemed to cooperate, especially the weather, for organizers of the five-venue festival downtown Saturday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Festival-goers saw 25 acts at different times at the Off-Broadway Taproom, Electric Lady, Red Bicycle Hall, Thomas Family Winery and House of Jane barber shop throughout the day.

"It was awesome for a first time. We couldn't be happier," said Tony Novello, head of the Mad Hop committee. Novello has in the past worked with the RiverRoots and Ribberfest Festivals. He is also a Red Bicycle Hall partner.

Novello said 400 to 500 wristbands were sold, surpassing the original goal of 300. By Saturday morning, they were all sold out, he said.

Novello and his committee started planning for the event early in the year and took inspiration from the Bristol Rhythm and Roots Reunion, another multiple-location-based festival in Bristol, Tennessee, he said.

Like Mad Hop, the Bristol festival started small, but exploded because of its new approach on music festivals.

Unlike big festivals, Mad Hop allows weather to play a lesser part and gives festival-goers more leeway in coming and going to different sets, Novello said.

Dan Williams, another organizer and the lead organizer of RiverRoots for the past three years, said it was a goal to bring people to Madison, make sure they spend time exploring the city and to place artists in venues suited to them. All of which was done on a model in which Mad Hop pays for the artists to play different venues, and the venues themselves make money from alcohol and food sales in exchange for offering their space all day, he said.

For Steve Thomas, owner of the Thomas Family Winery, it was all about bringing in new faces, both in the crowd and on stage. Thomas said the winery was packed all day with people he had never seen in Madison.

The mild 60-degree weather also made it a pleasant experience for festival-goers to sit inside or hang out on the back patio, he said.

"We've seen some days on this date snowing sideways and some days 70 degrees," Thomas said.

A quieter place away from the bars was House of Jane, which saw a number of acoustic acts throughout the day. The owner, Jane Vonderheide, said the small barbershop was at or near capacity all day, especially during Robert Reynolds' solo set.

Future plans for the festival include more downtown venues and the possibility of weatherproof tents for outdoor sets, Novello said. One welcome addition would be the Ohio Theatre because it could add 500 to 600 seats, he said. The theater has not re-opened after a fire about a year and a half ago.

"If they say they're ready, we'll be cause shifts in the soil and that impacts the lines that carry the water — especially older lines like those serving some areas of downtown Madison.

City of Madison Utility Manager Brian Jackson said water leaks are to be expected and the one vehicles splashed through Monday on S.R. 56 near the entrance to River Chase Golf Course was not even a big leak compared to most.

"That was not that big of a leak down there even though it probably looked like a big leak with all the water splashing," Jackson said. "We have bigger leaks all the time. We once had one that leaked right into a storm sewer that emptied into a creek that went on for no telling how long until one of our guys who was by the creek smelled chlorine and knew we had a leak. It was probably leaking 500,000 gallons a month."

Jackson said water lines are pressurized — that's how residents have sufficient flow when they turn on their faucets and how the water is kept from contamination — and any time a line is pressurized it will sooner or later leak.

"The national average is 19% to 20% loss through leaks," Jackson said. "That means some cities are losing 30% or 40% and others may be losing just 16% or 17% but everybody is losing something. There's no way you're ever not going to have leaks."

Gilpin said Sedam had been contracted for the repair by the city and there were two lines in the area of Monday's repair — a 2-inch and a 6-inch — and he wouldn't know which one or if both were involved until he excavated the site. The repair would likely take about a day to complete but, by keeping the line pressurized, residents and businesses could continue to have water service.

Although the line is located close to S.R. 56, contractors expect there should also be enough room to work without detouring and reducing traffic to one lane.

Jackson said the city is currently repairing two breaks in downtown Madison — the other is on Third Street — but that repairs should be able to be made without depressurizing lines so customers can avoid service interruptions and boil advisories. He said boil advisories can impact residences, businesses and schools depending on how much area is impacted. No advisory has been issued in Monday's breaks.

He reaffirmed Gilpin's assessment on the impact of weather on utilities like water, noting that extremely dry summers are as hard on water systems as extremely cold weather and both are less than optimal for avoiding problems for the city or homeowners.

"Dry weather, when the soil settles and it's really dry, the soil tends to crack more and that puts pressure on our pipes," Jackson said. "Most of the leaks homeowners have are due to winter cold where they've not got enough heat on the line and the line freezes and then leaks when it thaws.

"About the only thing they can do is better insulate their homes around the foundation," Jackson said of heading into the cold season. "There are also some pipes that are more resistant to freezing. PEX pipe is more resistant to freezing than old-time copper or PVC. PEX will expand a lot while copper and PVC are more likely to break."

Area girls teams ready to hit the hardwood

By ROB LAFARY
Courier Staff Writer
sports@madisoncourier.com

The 2019-2020 Indiana girls high school basketball season kicks off this week and all four area teams are looking to take major strides heading into the new year. Here's a look at the four schools:

Madison Cubs

Madison finished 11-14 a year ago but with the bulk of the roster returning, a resurgence is on the horizon for the Lady Cubs when the season kicks off this week.

The Cubs saw success against tough competition throughout the summer and the goal now is to capture the team's first winning season since 2015 when Madison finished 16-8.

"We have a good crew coming back," second year head coach Sonja Bowyer said. "Our confidence is up and we spent the summer developing some different skills. We are just seeing what we have but we now have a year together under our belt and I'm excited to see what this team brings every night."

Madison returns a full arsenal which includes its top two leading scorers in Jade Nutley and Paige Young but the supporting cast has developed, giving the Cubs much needed depth. Both newcomers and returners to the varsity roster are expected to contribute in big ways.

"We have a group that is looking forward to rising to the occasion," Bowyer said. "We have a crew of guards that can play fast and some inside players that are smart and know the game. We can throw several different combinations out on the floor this year."

Madison opens on Thursday at home against Charlestown.

Shawe Hilltoppers

The Hilltoppers will be without graduated leading scorer and Madison Courier Player of the Year Kate Grote, but Shawe is optimistic that its young roster can fill the void as the season progresses.

Terry King begins his second season as coach with four returning varsity players but does welcome three freshmen to the fold, giving Shawe a unique blend that is anticipated to grow as the year goes along.

"We have 14 girls in our program right now and they are all girls that want to learn the game," King said. "We have good athletes but we are still teaching the game. Perhaps early on we may take some lumps but we feel like we will be competitive as the year goes."

Shawe will have a physical presence inside with senior Grace McAllister and sophomore Lina Leatherman while Phoebe Grote and Abigail Hill will take on bigger roles in the backcourt. That experience will play a big role as the team navigates itself early on in the year.

"We are better where we were this time last year," King said. "With Kate (Grote) gone we need a little more out of everybody. Our returners have really picked it up at practice and our freshmen bring some aggressiveness to the floor. Our effort is there but we have to stay focused."

Shawe opens on Tuesday night at home against Lanesville.

Southwestern Rebels

The Lady Rebels lose 1,000-plus point scorer Abby Ralston and a total team effort will be the theme for Southwestern girls basketball.

Devin Brierly enters her third season as head coach and Southwestern is working toward being a competitor. While the game may not be perfect in November, the ultimate goal is to be a threat by the end of 2019 and when 2020 rolls around.

"We are a work in progress," Brierly said. "The kids are catching on quickly with the concepts that we throw at them but we are just now finally getting our whole team together. I'm optimistic about this team."

Despite Ralston departing via graduation, Brierly does have several players back with varsity experience including Ellie Foley, who returns after suffering an early season-ending knee injury last year. The roster is deep which bodes well for the Rebels, which will need everybody to contribute in order to put together a successful campaign.

"It's no secret we lack size but we can make up for it with our quickness," Brierly said. "Most of our varsity players have experience and that will be to our benefit. We can play a fast paced game and can apply pressure on the defensive end. It's going to take our whole group to go out and win a game but it's a group with great chemistry."

Southwestern opens on Friday at Henryville.

Switzerland Co.Pacers

A young Pacer squad went through growing pains during a 12-12 campaign but a group that finished as Class 2A Sectional 45 runner-up now has Switzerland County setting goals for a championship one year later.

Switzerland County returns several key players and is expected to be a front runner for both an Ohio River Valley Conference championship and a sectional title.

"I've coached for 20 years and now three years as a head coach and this group goes right up there with some of the best teams I've been around," Pacer head coach Mark Boggs said. "These kids come in ready to go and it's refreshing to know the effort is always going to be there. Our older kids are doing a great job of teaching the game to our younger kids. It has been a great two weeks of practice."

The Pacers return leading scorer Aleiah Ragsdale, who is 48 points away from 1,000 career points, and who will aid in the team's goal of improving upon an offense that averaged just 44.3 points per game. But she won't be alone. Several players have used the offseason to improve on the offensive end and Boggs says he is hopeful for a boost on the scoreboard.

"Our goal is 50 points per game," Boggs said. "We feel like we can be quick and get up the floor. We hang our hat on defense but we want to score more. The pieces are in place and we just have to stay healthy and keep grinding. Watching our kids make a huge jump has been an eye opener."

Switzerland County opens the season on Nov. 12 at South Dearborn.

HANOVER ROUNDUP

Men's soccer clinches title; football close to repeat

sports@madisoncourier.com

Hanover men's soccer closed out the regular season with a 2-0 win at Defiance on Saturday to wrap up the program's second-straight Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference championship.

The Panthers scored what proved to be the winning goal just eight minutes into the contest when Carlos Schryver, a sophomore from Sao Paulo, Brazil, connected off an assist by Josh Hughes for a 1-0 lead.

Luke Eppler, a sophomore from Evansville, then provided the insurance goal in the 82nd minute off another Hughes assist.

Hanover out-shot Defiance 22-11 in the match, but just 9-7 on goal. Keeper Will Bedel, a junior from Walton, Kentucky, stopped seven shots for the Panthers to record the shutout.

Hanover (11-5-1) closed the regular season with eight-straight wins ato tie Rose-Hulman atop the HCAC standings at 8-1. The No. 1 seed, thanks to a head-to-head win over Rose, the Panthers now host Manchester in the tournament semifinals on Wednesday at 2 p.m. A win would allow the Panthers to host either Rose or Transylvania in the championship on Saturday.

Defense leads football

Hanover football faced the tall task of battling one of the nation's best offenses but defense prevailed in a major way as the Panthers dominated host Mount St. Joseph (Ohio) 27-3 on Saturday afternoon to remain unbeaten in HCAC play.

Mount (6-2, 4-2 HCAC) entered the game averaging more than 430 yards of total offense, including a nationally-ranked air attack steered by quarterback Chaiten Tomlin, who ranks in the Top 20 in both passing yards and touchdowns. For 60 minutes, the Panthers never allowed Tomlin or the Mount offense a chance to shine.

Hanover's defense limited the Lions to its lowest point total of the season and did so by allowing just 281 yards of total offense including only 11 yards on the ground. Tomlin, who has thrown for more than 2,200 yards and 25 touchdowns, was held without a score and finished the day at 19-of-34 passing for 277 yards. And as the Panthers stood tall with their defensive game plan, the offense followed suit.

Shawn Coane ran up the middle on Hanover's first drive of the game for a two-yard score that was followed by Austin Steurer's extra point but the 7-0 lead was temporarily broken up on Mount's lone score of the day, a 23-yard field goal by Spencer Dufresne.

The Panthers responded on the ensuing drive however, this time going to the air. Noah Wezensky lofted a 34-yard pass that found Taylor Blestein in the end zone and Hanover led 13-3 at the end of the first quarter.

Wezensky and Coane each added another touchdown for Hanover's final two scores of the game. Wezensky hit Jared Frank on a 37-yard pass and Steurer's second extra point gave the Panthers a 20-3 lead at halftime and Coane busted through the middle again in the fourth quarter, this time from three yards out, and Steurer again connected on an extra point.

Coane finished the day with 22 carries for 160 yards and two touchdowns while Walt Ballinger added 65 yards on 13 carries. Wezensky's two touchdown passes paired with a 18-of-26 passing day for 225 yards, with his top target Frank having four catches for 85 yards and a score.

Defensively, Hanover had 12 tackles for a loss which included seven sacks, the most the Lions have allowed all season. Chase Cope had seven tackles which included a sack and 2.5 tackles for a loss. Devonte Hardiman led with 2.5 sacks and Dakota Manion had 1.5 sacks and two tackles for a loss. Kyle Treber had six tackles and forced a fumble in the first half.

Cornell Beachem Jr. led the Lion offense with 77 yards on 18 carries while also bringing down five catches for 75 yards. Chase Pankey led all receivers with seven catches and 125 yards.

Hanover (7-1, 5-0 HCAC) can clinch the HCAC title outright and claim the league's automatic bid to the NCAA playoffs next Saturday at Rose-Hulman. The Fightin' Engineers are currently second in the HCAC with a 5-1 mark and a 6-2 overall record.

Women crush Defiance

Hanover women's soccer cruised past Defiance 9-0 on Saturday to clinch the No. 2 seed in this week's HCAC Tournament.

The Panthers, who finished the regular season with a 10-5-2 overall record and 7-1-1 mark in the HCAC, outshot Defiance 26-5 overall and 23-4 on goal. The Panthers also had 10 corner kick chances to four by the Yellow Jackets.

Ruby Kate Gray, a sophomore from Lexington, Kentucky, and Autumn Boothby, a sophomore from Mount Orab, Ohio, each scored two goals to lead the Panthers while Josie Dattilo, Anna Smith, Kelsey Hughes, Maggie Day and Natalie Fausz had one each. Kayla Nowlin, Boothby, Olivia Shakun and Day each had assists.

Emma Debolt, a senior from West Chester, Ohio, played 30 minutes in goal without a save for the Panthers and was awarded the win, her first of the season. Amanda Carmosino and Katie Perry each also spent time in goal with Carmosino stopping three shots and Perry one.

Hanover will host No. 3 seed Franklin in the HCAC semifinals at 2 p.m. Tuesday with Mount St. Joseph traveling to Rose-Hulman in the other match. The championship will be on Saturday at the highest remaining seed.

Volleyball sweeps two

Hanover College volleyball clinched the second seed in this week's HCAC tournament with a pair of wins at home this weekend.

The Panthers swept Manchester 25-20, 27-25, 25-23 on Friday then posted a four-set win over Anderson, 25-17, 22-25, 25-15, 25-20 on Saturday.

In the win over Manchester, Carlie Burson, a senior from Corydon, had eight kills on 13-of-16 hitting while Emma Rolf, a sophomore from Lebanon, had six kills on 24-of-29 hitting. Adrianne Vance, a freshman from Indianapolis, had six kills while Kelsey Ketcham, a sophomore from Mishawaka, had 21 assists and five kills. Ally Williams, a senior from Fountaintown, had 11 digs.

Against Anderson, Vance had 14 kills and six digs, Rolf had 13 kills and four digs, Maura Dankoski, a sophomore from Fishers, had 10 kills, Ketcham had 40 assists, and Williams had 20 digs.

Hanover wraps up the regular season with an 18-10 overall record and 6-2 in the HCAC.

COME TOGETHER: Hanover's Brynn Durecki (above, 18), Amber Miller (19) and Emma Rolf (20) converge on the ball during Saturday's match at home against Anderson. The Panthers' Kelsey Ketcham (below, 10) punches the ball over the Ravens' Taylor Lawson (2). (Staff photos by David Campbell)

The Panthers will face the winner between Defiance and Rose-Hulman in the tournament semifinals Saturday at Transylvania.

Harriers run at HCAC

Hanover's women placed second and the men finished fourth at the HCAC Cross Country Championships Sunday in Terre Haute.

The Hanover women scored 45 points, led by Arig Tong's runner-up finish in 23:13. Brianna Medcalf was fourth in 24:14, Caitlyn Naghdi was sixth in 24:30, Sawyer Osmun was 14th in 25:36 and Ariel Barlow was 19th in 25:50. Tong, Medcalf, Naghdi and Osmun were each named all-HCAC with their finishes while Barlow was an honorable mention selection.

Maddie McHugh was 29th in 26:36 and Ashley Senerius was 46th in 28:13 to round out Hanover's scoring.

Manchester won the team title with 27 points.

Hayden Veach led the men with a second-place finish in 26:51 to earn all-conference honors as Hanover finished fourth as a team with 117 points. Manchester won the race with 46 points.

Cooper Hanson was 22nd in 28:20 for Hanover, Michael Taylor was 24th in 28:36, Andy Vilardo was 31st in 28:59, Andrew Clegg was 38th in 29:43 and Robert Hoegeman was 48th in 31:32.

Hanover's next meet will be the NCAA Division III Great Lakes Regional at Calvin (Mich.) College on Saturday, Nov. 16.

HOW TO PLAY: Each row, column and set of 3-by-3 boxes must contain the numbers 1 through 9 without repetition.

BRIDGE

HOW CAN YOU GET OVER THERE ENOUGH?

Orson Welles said, "My doctor told me to stop having intimate dinners for four. Unless there are three other people."

A bank manager told today's declarer to stop throwing in the towel without first finding a third dummy entry.

How should South play in seven no-trump after West leads the diamond nine?

Before we get to that, what does South's sequence mean?

To be honest, I cannot remember seeing that at the table. South showed a balanced hand with -- approximately! -- 28-30 points. North, unable to use Gerber or Blackwood to ask for aces and kings, understandably leapt to seven no-trump. (Regular readers will know that I would respond two no-trump with that North hand. Then South could jump to four clubs, Gerber asking for aces, followed by five clubs for kings. When North denies a king, South can stop in six no-trump.)

South has only 10 top tricks: four spades, one heart, two diamonds and three clubs. To get up to 13, he needs to find East with the heart king and collect four heart tricks. But that might require taking three finesses in the suit, which would need three dummy entries -- and they are available if spades break 3-2.

Cash the spade king, then overtake the spade queen with dummy's ace. (If someone shows out, hope East has at most king-third of hearts.) In the dummy, you take a heart finesse.

Now overtake the spade 10 with dummy's jack and repeat the heart finesse. Finally, lead your carefully preserved spade three to dummy's four, take a third heart finesse and claim.

Concerned for cat and 'depressed and confused' owner

Annie Lane

Dear Readers: A great many of you wrote in expressing concern for Whiskers and her owner. Your letters bring up a number of insightful points about the correlation between animal abuse and spousal and child abuse. All of you warned that Tom's behavior should serve as a red flag that he could end up abusing his wife or their future children.

I agree with all of you that, for everyone's safety, she must leave with Whiskers, and Tom can seek therapy on his own. Here are just some of your letters:

Dear Annie: To the woman whose husband's behavior has changed toward her beloved cat: This is a giant red flag! Your suggestion, Annie, of telling her to leave makes the most sense. People can fake responses in therapy, and it sounds like this man probably won't go anyway.

If he acts this way toward something that means so much to her, what will happen with children? If they have a child and the child resembles a family member he doesn't like, then what will be his reaction? What if he resents the affection and time given to the child? Wishing her the courage and strength she needs to move forward. A Concerned Follower of Your Column

Dear Concerned Follower: Thank you so much for your suggestions and praise. Let's hope she has taken our advice.

Dear Annie: I am concerned about "Depressed and Confused." Her poor cat cannot talk but is telling her the only way it knows how by hiding or running from her husband. That's about as clear a sign as she can have that the husband is abusive. I doubt counseling will help him because, for some reason, he thinks he has a right to abuse that poor helpless animal.

I would never, ever trust Tom to be alone with animals. You bet I'd get out, now! — Defending Whiskers

Dear Defending Whiskers: Thank you for sharing your concern.

Dear Annie: Please tell Depressed and Confused to run, not walk, out of that marriage. I, too, was in a similar marriage and wish someone had opened my eyes. Instead, I took his (verbal and cat) abuse for 29 years. Everything was always my fault. After years of therapy, I am finally free of him — going on 11 years now — and am very happy with my four cats. They bring me more joy than my husband ever did. — Cat Lover in Florida

Dear Cat Lover: Thank you for sharing your story. Abuse is never acceptable, whether it is aimed at people or animals. I agree with you. Tom has got to go!

Dear Annie: I am writing with concern about the husband who was mean to his wife's cat. When I was young, I had a dog named Holly. My parents had refused a dog for years, so when I finally got her, she meant the world to me. At the time, I was dating my husband and he would mock the dog, making fun of her and putting her down. Unfortunately, I dismissed this and married him anyway.

Annie, you are absolutely correct. The way he treated Holly became the way he treated me. I had an awful marriage with him, and he was emotionally abusive. This woman must consider his behavior a giant red flag and leave that marriage as soon as possible. This is the behavior of a narcissist. They do not change. He cares only about himself. A caring person would manage to be kind to the cat, if only for his wife's sake. Consider yourself lucky to see the signs, because you could be in the cat's place soon enough. He is already disregarding you. — From Experience

Dear From Experience: Yours is one of a great many letters pointing out that people who hurt animals will eventually hurt people. The reason I wanted to print yours is because you speak from experience. Thank you for sharing.
